

Australia. We are made up of so many different countries it's not funny. France, Germany, Japan, Thailand you name it! We all migrated here. We may all be different, but you know what's great about our country compared to all the others. We can except our differences. No matter what they are-different colour hair, different skin colour, different beliefs. We have learnt to except each other for who we are.after all we can't all be the same. Other countries have trouble excepting everyone's different beliefs, which can cause fights with other countries. But Australia has all different types of languages, skin colours, beliefs and every one belongs. We are all different in our own ways., and we should always feel free to speak aloud about our feeling or emotions because Australia is a free country and we all live in harmony. That's why Australia is a great place to live.
